The ROP truck driving class will have one of their "big trucks" in the parking lot. Go ahead; get in and get a new perspective on things.

Presentations on the outdoor stage will begin at 12:30 p.m. with several individuals and groups singing and dancing for your entertainment. The variety of acts includes a youth choir, square dancers, round dancers and more with changes every 30

Groups featured at the fair will include: Grossmont Hospital Diabetes Testing, Social Security Services, financial planning, Helix Water District, the Cancer Society, Grossmont Adult Education, East County ROP and Vocational Education, Lemon Grove Recreation, Lemon Grove Review Sheriff's Crime Prevention, Disaster Preparedness and Environmental Associations. Of special interest will be a xeriscape landscaping project to be done as a joint educational project of the ROP landscaping classes, Helix Water Conservation and the Congregational Church.

The ongoing project will be begun at the fiar so area residents can watch each step of the pro-

The Community Friendship cess and incorporate the plans into their home landscaping. Afternoon activities will close at 4:45 p.m.

The Lemon Grove

At 5 p.m., the sounds of music will begin as Ann Strong and Chuck Price, accompanied by Debbie Vail, present an hour-long festival of song, dance and comedy in the church auditorium. Ann grew up in Lemon Grove, attending San Altos Elementary School, Palm Jr. High and Mt. Miguel High School. She began piano, voice and theater instruction at an early age and has earned a California Music Teacher's Association Certificate and trophy in both voice and piano. She studied voice under Valeria Post and piano under Louise Henderson, two of San Diego's most successful teachers. At Mt. Miguel, she sang in the awardwinning Girls' Ensemble under David Maas for three years and was Junior Director of the choir. Chuck Price came to San Diego from Dallas three years ago with a long list of performances in 49 musicals to his credit.

Chuck's fine tenor is a perfect blend with Ann's rich soprano and they have appeared togeter in several musicals. You may have seen them as Baby June and Tulsa in Lamplighter Theater's sell-out production of "Gypsy" this summer.

Finally at 6:15 p.m., Jeanette Ela and her Kitchen Krew will serve a fine dinner featuring her country chicken and fixin's, with a potato bar. They got rave reviews last year from a Social Hall full of hungry diners.

Reservations for booth space, the art or craft shows, or a 20-30 minute time slot on the outdoor stage can be made by calling 463-3074 or 466-0503 (church office). There are a few booth spaces left and limited space in the exhibits so call early. Reservations for these afternoon events close September 23. Dinner and/or show reservations are now open and will remain available until September 24th.

Lemon Grove Boy Scout Troop seeks adventure

BSA Troop 108 of Lemon Grove has had an active outdoor program for boys for 39 years. This year began with the International Camporee on June 23-25 where the Troop competes in various skill challenges among troops from all over California and Mexico.

Another highlight in July was a full weekend at Fiesta Island on Mission Bay. At each troop meeting and weekend campout, the Boy Scouts learn to set up camp, shoulder responsibilities, cook meals and a variety of other skills while working as a troop and patrol team. Of course, learning is all wrapped up around fun and the great outdoors.

All of this experience is put to good use as the Troop finished this year with a full week of summer camp in August in the High Sierra Mountains, at Badger Lakes in the Mammoth Lakes area. Troop 108 enjoys the strong leadership of experienced Scoutmaster Jim Hall, assisted by no less than four experienced Assistance Scoutmasters. The Troop also benefits with an experienced Committee Chairman, Joe Smithey.

There are many new changes this year in the Boy Scout pro-

Commentary

by Max Goodwin

The reappearance of Communist China's senior leader, Deng Xiaoping, 85 during the weekend raised eyebrows only slightly.

He had stayed out of the spotlight for the past 3 months following the student massacre at Beijing's Tiananmen Square.

Immediately following the massacre, he ordered the old-guard's hardline policy to be resurrected which resulted in an unannounced number of students to be arrested.

He appeared on Chinese television looking rested and tanned. Deng was last seen, also on TV, on June 9th, when he congratulated his troops for crushing the democracy movement five days earlier.

Deng is quoted as saying that China "had learned a major lesson" from the spring-summer events. He said that some leaders had not paid enough attention to ideological and political developments and were not vigilant enough against serious corruption.

Correctional measures proved to be less than effective. "After the turmoil, all of us have become sober-minded," he explained.

Many Americans believe that China's financially successful and democratic Island of Taiwan has not failed to catch the attention of many mainlanders. With each uprising, democracy will inch forward, it is believed.

Deng said that China would continue its reform policies, but in the same breath, suggested that the country would also pay more attention to ideology.

This week Deng apparently showed his determination to tighten the Communist control over the nation when he reported his choice as a successor. He named Communist Party General Secretary Jiang Zemin. He did not suggest that he was retiring. Since Jiang is noted to be a "mainstream" leader, it becomes evident that no change in China's government leadership is seen in the immediate future.

It Was Hard to Bear

"Take the Lemon out of Lemon Grove?" That would be as bad as taking the "Loss" out of Las Vegas. What would happen to the famous phrase, "Lemon Grove—The Best Climate on Earth?" In the wind, there is talk about replacing the big, yellow Lemon with a big, red Trolley. Can you imagine a place called "Trolley Grove?" I do think that it would destroy the rural image that our little village has had over the many years.

When we bought our house in Lemon Grove, California, we didn't realize what a bonanza that we had right in our front yard. It was a huge, 18-year-old lemon tree that was half dead from the lack of T.L.C. (Tender Loving Care).

My life, Willie, recognized the potential of this old tree and gave it the care it hadn't had for a long time. I praised her for it, "We'll see if your green thumb works this time."

The lemon tree showed its appreciation by bursting out in full bloom, and in a short time, was loaded with extra large, juicy fruit. The tree became the pride of the neighborhood, as people would come from all over to take pictures standing beside it. They would invariably ask, "Could we please have a sample lemon to take along?"

I said to Willie, "From now on, our attraction will pay its own room and board." So we bagged the yellow beauties and sold them to the passing curious. One summer we sold over 100 dozen, besides the ones that we used ourselves for delicious lemonade.

A couple of years ago, while on our summer vacation, we received the terrible news of our lemon tree's demise. It seems that the water softener, located in the garage, had burst and the salt water ran down the sidewalk in front of the tree. It proved what will happen if there is too much sodium in your diet, as "Ol' Sour" just withered and died, never to bloom again.

Willie tried with all of her green thumbs until they turned red, but she still couldn't revive the prolific bearer. Willie said, "I now pronounce you dead."

Instead of the usual services for a departed friend, our son wrenched the remains out of the ground and cut it up to be cremated in the fireplace. Whenever a chunk of "Ol' Sour" was tossed onto the fire on chilly nights, a silent prayer was said by the sole survivors. Willie and I.

It was just more than we could bear, life without those big, yellow beauties, so I planted a baby lemon tree in Ol' Sour's spot. I tied fresh lemons, oranges, limes and tangerines from its little limbs as a surprise birthday present for Willie.

My wife thanked me and did appreciate my gift, but said, "No other tree will ever take the place of our Ol' Sour. We won't live long enough to see the new baby bear fruit like the dearly departed."

P.S. It's been just two years since the new arrival joined our family and has already tried to show its worth by loading its little branches with big, yellow lemons; so many that some of its tiny limbs had to be amputated.

The "Lemon" in Lemon Grove still sounds pretty good to me.

School bus safety highlighted during National School Bus Safety Week

More than 2,600 school buses carrying school children were involved in accidents in California between July 1, 1987, and July 1, 1988. According to California Highway Patrol statistics, 563 pupil passengers were injured in these collisions. To help reduce these figures, September 17–23 has been designated by the National School Transportation Association as National School Bus Safety Week—a good time for parents to teach their youngsters safe bus riding habits.

"The safety of an entire bus load of passengers may be jeopardized if one or two students behave irresponsibly," said Rhonda Aizenberg, Ph.D., public safety manager for the Automobile Safety Club of Southern California. "Trained bus drivers are primarily responsible for the students' safety, but the youngsters also have responsibilities."

She suggests parents instruct their youngsters to follow a "few simple safety rules" by reminding them to: wait for the bus in a safe location; stay in line while boarding the bus; hold the handrail when entering and leaving the bus: follow the driver's instructions; keep the aisles clear; keep their arms and head inside the bus; watch for traffic when leaving the bus; and learn and practice (under proper supervision) the emergency exit drill.

Motorists should drive defensively and obey the law about school buses. "Stop your car and wait until the red lights on the school bus have stopped flashing. These lights indicate children are entering or leaving the bus or may be crossing the street," reminded Aizenberg.

Chacon wins bipartisan approval of minority empowerment bill

Assemblyman Peter R. Chacon (D-San Diego) proclaimed a major victory for all minority groups throughout the state with the bipartisan approval of his Assembly Bill 2 by the State Senate. The bill must now return to the Assembly for acceptance of minor amendments made in the Senate.

AB 2 requires all school districts that had, in the 1987-88 Fiscal Year, a pupil enrollment of 20,000 or more and of which at least 21 percent of the students were members of an ethnic minority, to establish singlemember trustee areas to elect their school board members.

According to Assemblyman Chacon, "This bill is the first step in the empowerment if minority communities throughout the state. The recent Watsonville decision found that the at-large election system violates the voting rights of the minorities. It is time that the California Legislature responded by passing legislation aimed at protecting these rights. AB 2 is an opportunity to accomplish this important goal."

Although Assemblyman Chacon has introduced similar legislation in the past, this is the first time such a bill has passed both houses of the Legislature. Chacon credits this accomplishment to the fact that legislators are now aware of the need for such legislation as a result of the Watsonville case.

While the bill received bipartisan support on the Senate Floor, Chacon is concerned about the possibility of a gubernatorial veto. "Once the Assembly accepts the Senate amendments, this bill will go to the Governor. AB 2 provides the Governor the opportunity to show Latinos that he does not oppose legislation aimed at benefiting our community.

"Therefore, it is extremely important that Latinos throughout the state write and call the Governor to let him know exactly how important this bill is to us," Chacon concluded.

The bill is co-sponsored by a number of legislators, including Senate President Pro-Tem David Roberti and Assembly Speaker Willie Brown.

Grove Meandering

By Fran Rottet

Following my comments on the trolley and intersection congestion, in the Review last week, I had a lengthy conversation with Dr. Bob Burns. As you know, Dr. Burns is a member of the MTDB, and he gave me some information that our community may not be aware of.

The Public Utilities Com-mission is in the process of approving a Nearside Control System. This system will give the trolley operator control of the crossing gates at the intersections.

Presently the gates are raised and lowered automatically, as the trolley reaches control points along the routes. As a trolley approaches the Broadway station, gates at Broadway and Lemon Grove Avenue are lowered and remain so until the trolley has moved through the intersections and reaches a control point which allows the gates to raise.

The Nearside Control feature will allow the trolley operator to control the gates. This means that while the trolley is stopped, the gates can be kept up and traffic can continue uninterrupted. When the trolley is ready to move away from the station, the operator can lower the gates until the trolley clears the intersection.

Such equipment will help with traffic turning left on Broadway, going west. Getting caught, until then, means that one lane of southbound traffic will have trouble moving forward, if one gets caught by the gates. Perhaps a change in timing of the turn arrow could lessen the problem.

In any case, it will be several months before the equipment can be installed and put into operation. When it is, the traffic flow will be much smoother. Until such time, we can do much to alleviate the frustrations. The KEEP CLEAR areas (marked by white diagonal stripes) should BE kept clear. Once a light gives the go ahead, there is enough time to negotiate the corner.

I suggested having a NO TURN ON RED posted for east bound traffic turning south on Lemon Grove Avenue, and any other intersection that might present the same problems. KEEP CLEAR designations and NO TURN ON RED would go far in alleviating the problems that exist now, today.

Dr. Burns quotes the MTDB Chairman, Senator James Mills, who while looking at the broad picture, said, "I will be very happy to accept all of the glitches and inconveniences that the trolley has produced, IF I will also be given the entire credit for all of the benefits and good things that have also resulted from it."

Dr. Burns went on to say that all of the members of the MTDB were in agreement. And when one sees how much the trolley is used by our residents, one must concur with these sentiments.

With the knowledge that a Nearside Control System is in the works, perhaps the delays of today will not be quite so frustrating to those of us who get caught up in them.

E.M.S. Week recognized by Grossmont Hospital

By Mary Johanna Savary

September 17th through the 23rd marks "Emergency Medical Service" (E.M.S.) Week at Grossmont Hospital. This is a nationally recognized, annual event by the American College of Emergency Physicians. The celebration is designed to educate, familiarize and inform the public about Grossmont's Emergency Department (E.D.) as well as promoting information and education to the other staff of the hospital.

According to Sue Anderson, Department Assistant of Emergency and Ambulatory Services at Grossmont, "The Emergency Department treats approximately 3,905 people each month, between 120 to 130 people a day, compared to the 1976 average of 2,157." Out of the daily figures, approximately 20 are admitted to the hospital. In 1975, Grossmont Hospital established one of the first paramedic base stations. They are the "base" for seven different emergency units and some sixty paramedics. Those figures do not include Emergency Medical Technicians (E.M.T.'s) from the volunteer fire departments that use the hospital, or ambulances. Grossmont's radio room is the "heart" of the area's emergency rescue teams. Twentyfour hours a day, a trained Mobile Intensive Care Nurse (M.I.C.N.) is at the radio. M.I.C.N.'s are specially trained and certified registered nurses. The nurses' special training enables them to make decisions about starting I.V. therapy, and what drugs the patient needs and to provide the paramedic any needed direction on caring for the patient. Their sole responsibility is monitoring the emergency radio. Because of how closely the M.I.C.N. and the paramedic work together, part of the paramedic's "in-field" training is done with the Mobile Intensive Care Nurses. The physicians are always close at hand if ever the nurse feels his assistance is needed. "Grossmont Hospital's emergency department is, and is encouraged to be a 'team effort,' the ability to work together is so important, and even more so to a department like ours," says Anderson.

There is no better example of this than the mother/son team of Lorainne Scwartz and her son, Kent. Both are R.N.'s and work in the emergency department. "We are really a 'family' hospital here; many of the hospital staff are related to one another," Anderson stated. Another staff member commented, "It's not uncommon around here for someone to say, 'Hey, Mom,' and most everybody's head turns.

Grossmont is also the East County base hospital for the training and monitoring of the new E.M.T-D defibrillator used by the fire department's Emergency Medical Technicians. The E.M.T.-D is a state of the art computerized defibrillator that actually has a "voice." The E.M.T.-D will tell the rescuer exactly what the patient's heart is doing and what the E.M.T. needs to do to treat the patient. It also records all communication by the E.M.T.'s while helping the patient. The physicians at Grossmont's emergency room can then review not only the patient's heart activity, and treatment, but can also use the communication between the E.M.T.'s that was recorded as a teaching device. Another future feature coming to Grossmont's E.D. is their "Fast Track" program. Fast Track will be designed to treat the more "minor" emergencies more quickly. As it is now, patients are treated in order of priority ... not first come, first serve. Grossmont plans to build a new emergency department at some point in the future. Fast Track may be added at that time or could possible start using the current Emergency Department Minor's Consent Cards are another feature Grossmont's emergency department offers to the community. The program has already been in effect for a number of years, and is designed to help minors brought to the emergency room. The card contains information about the child as well as any pertinent medical information, and alternative contacts in the event a parent cannot be reached. It also gives permission to treat the child in the event of an emergency. This ability can be invaluable when time is of the essence. The cards are available to anyone that wishes to obtain one. They can be picked up at the main lobby of the hospital and are also distributed at Health Fairs. They are also available to groups that have children participating in sports activities. After parents complete and sign the consent card, it can be brought to the emergency department or mailed, and is kept on file in the emergency room until the child reaches the age of 18. The parents can call the emergency department and update the card as needed.

During E.M.S. Week, persons treated in the emergency room will receive a special button that reads: "Emergency Department, we care every hour, every day." And on September 20th and 21st, the emergency department will have special information tables set up in the cafeteria at Grossmont. Among the many things displayed will be gift bags available to the public, filled with little necessities that can be real "life savers."

Grossmont encourages everyone to visit the display during E.M.S. Week, and get to know what an Emergency Department is, and how it works.

Mt. Miguel High School seeks new high-tech automated library system

By Mimi Curtin

MIGUEL PAL stands for "Mt. Miguel Project Automated Library," the Mt. Miguel Library/Media program's capital fund drive to bring library stateof-the-art technology to Mt. Miguel High School. It will implement the Grossmont District Library Council's decision to obtain the ATLAS library automation system which will eventually network the district school libraries together and allow students and faculty to use a computerized public access catalog when searching for research materials.

Students will be able to know instantly if a book is available; teachers will be able to quickly find out where they may find needed materials; and the library staff and district instructional resource support personnel will have much improved accountability of costly resources.

Computerized data bases containing current reference materials on CD-ROM are also in the MIGUEL PAL plan. This means that students and faculty will be able to have the most current statistical data and other information at their fingertips.

Another important feature is the experience that students may gain in search techniques need for college or future jobs. Principal Pat Carroll says, "Our goal at Mt. Miguel High School is to develop in our students the necessary skills and attitudes to become productive citizens and life-long

Grossmont Hospital opens Donor Center

By Mary Johanna Savary

On Thursday, September 21st, Grossmont Hospital will host the grand opening of their new Blood Donor Center. The Blood Donor Center is equipped to handle autologous donations (blood that you donate for yourself for an upcoming surgery), as well as direct donations enabling a person to make a donation for a patient at the hospital who is in need of blood and has the same blood type.

"The Donor Center is set up to add convenience for the patients of Grossmont Hospital. With an order from the physician the patient can come in to the donor center and make donations for their surgery. The doctor can anticipate the amount of blood the patient may need before the time of the actual surgery," according to Dr. James Carrey, Pathologist at Grossmont. Doctor Carrey went on to add "there is no safer form of transfusion for anyone requiring surgery than his or her own blood."

Autologous transfusion has gained in popularity, especially in the last two years, the most significant reason for this is, according to Dr. Carrey, "that using your own blood is virtually without complications." Anyone that is anticipating surgery and will be treated at Grossmont is encouraged to speak to their physician about autologous transfusions. "Blood can be stored safely at eh Donor Center for 42 days, this allows the patient time to make the required donation for themselves," Carrey stated.

Directed donations are available for patients in need of blood and have a relative, or friend, that has the same blood type. With the doctor's approval, the donor can go to the Donor Center and give their donation. The cost of processing the blood is about $85.00 for the entire procedure. After the blood has been collected it is then sent to Palomar Hospital where it will be tested and processed. The blood goes through the normal routine test procedures such as HIV (AIDS) as well as for hepauus. The testing insures every possibility that the blood is healthy. The blood is then sent back to Grossmont where it remains until the patient requires it.

Grossmont Hospital's blood donor center will be open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. and Tuesday and Thursday from 1:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m.

The Donor Center has been in operation since August 14th and has been well received by both patients and doctors. Since the program was opened, Grossmont has received an average of three donations per day.

Before Grossmont Hospital organized the donor program, patients as well as family members had only one resource for a service of this kind, and that was through the San Diego Blood Bank located near downtown San Diego. The Grossmont Hospital Donor Center is sponsoring an open house Thursday, September 21st from 3:30 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. There will be food and refreshments during that time and the public is encouraged to stop by. The Donor Center is located just to the left of outpatient lobby on level "A."

'It's The Law'

that because my spouse is not a U.S. citizen, any property I either give as a gift or leave to my spouse at death will be subject to a gift or estate taxes. Is that true?

ANSWER: Yes. New tax legislation enacted late last year severely restricts the estate tax exempt status of property transferred to your spouse if your spouse is not a U.S. citizen.

Before the 1988 legislation, citizens and non-citizens were treated similarly in that property transfers between spouses were fully deductible against the federal estate (or gift) tax. For instance, if you left property to your spouse by will, through a qualified trust, or by designating your spouse as the beneficiary of life insurance, an IRA, a pension or profit sharing plan, or as the surviving joint tenant of real property or a joint bank account, the property would not be taxed at your death. The new legislation repealed this marital deduction in virtually all circumstances for property passing to a non-citizen spouse, thereby subjecting your property to taxes, at up to a top bracket of 55 percent.

Congress' rationale for enacting the new law was to prevent property from escaping transfer taxes upon the death of a non-citizen spouse, as would be the case where the non-citizen spouse removed the property from the U.S. Accordingly, the new law allows the unlimited marital deduction only under strict requirements that insure the property will be subject to tax either at the non-citizen spouse's death or when the property becomes capable of being transferred outside spouse's property must be trans- at 231-8585.

QUESTION: I have heard ferred to a trust referred to in the new law as a "qualified domestic trust," or "QDT." The QDT must require that: (1) the trustee be a U.S. citizen or U.S. corporation; and (2) all trust income be paid to the non-citizen spouse. Furthermore, any distributions of trust principal are immediately taxable, and the remaining trust principal is subject to estate taxes upon the later death of the non-citizen spouse.

Failure to meet the requirements of a QDT will likely result in burdensome consequences. For instance, assume a spouse dies leaving a Canadian or Mexican citizen spouse. The estate consists primarily of real property and an interest in a pension plan. Some, or possibly all, of the real estate might have to be sold to pay estate taxes. The pension plan might also have to be cashed out to help pay taxes, which should prevent a spousal election to defer income taxes on plan distribu-

The problems associated with transfers to a non-citizen spouse that do not qualify as a QDT are particularly acute if your existing estate plan was prepared prior to November of 1988. In most instances those estate plans will not meet the QDT requirements, and the unexpected tax may eliminate intended transfers to persons other than your spouse (i.e. children, parents or others).

Small Business Assistance group to start operations in October throughout area

Small businesses in San Diego and Imperial Counties will be served by a new non-profit organization called the California Southern Small Business Development Corporation (CSS-BDC). The CSSBDC will have its headquarters in the Great American Building at 6th and B Streets in downtown San Diego, and will begin operations in October, according to Gladys Calvin, chairperson of the newlyestablished group.

Calvin, branch manager of Great American's Southeast office, said the San Diego organization joins six other existing state small business development corporations that provide financial assistance to small businesses. They are located in Fresno, Salinas, Oakland, Sacramento and two in Los Angeles.

"Calvin is the first woman chosen to chair a small business development corporation in the 12 years of the program's existence," said Richard Nelson, executive director of the Office of Small Business (OSB), a unit of the state's Department of Commerce which oversees the organization. He added that Calvin's application for a San Diego-based group was among 40 statewide requests that were con-

According to James Young, OSB chief of credit administration in Sacramento, the program issues state-backed loan guarantees, similar to those issued by the U.S. Small Business Administration. Unlike the SBA, however, the development corporation also guarantees lines of credit.

"The program's loans are designed mainly for helping business that otherwise can't obtain a loan from a financial institution because they are relatively new or have inadequate collateral," Young explained. "The intent is to help existing businesses expand, modernize or purchase new equipment rather than for starting a new business.'

Calving added that the new program will assist small businesses in San Diego and Imperial Counties and can guarantee up to $350,000, with loan guarantees of up to seven years.

The state trust account has $34 million to back up the loans and about $4 million of it will be available to the new San Diego/Imperial Counties' group. Fees and interest rates will be set by the lending institutions that become involved.

"This is a great opportunity for small business owners," Calvin said. "Now, they'll be able to obtain needed capital that otherwise wouldn't be available to them.

Great American Bank has pledged financial assistance for the new CSSBDC and Calvin is solicitating additional funding from other financial institutions and businesses. Great American's senior corporate banking officers, Vernon V. Aguirre, has also joined the CSSBDC as treasurer.

In addition, Calvin announced that the group has appointed Michael McCraw as its president and chief executive officer. McCraw was previously a consultant with a small business development corporation in Fresno.

Calvin joined Great American in 1979. Along with her husband, Richard "Tip" Calvin, she has been a leader for many years in local community affairs. Community Women, Inc., Jack and Jill, Inc., Carousels, Inc., San Diego Girls Club and San Diego Urban League are some of the organizations she has served as a board member.

Aguirre joined the Bank in 1984 and is a board member of the San Diego Incubator Corporation, a non-profit group that promotes small business

Poor vision linked to delinquency

Can poor vision be a factor in the cause and prevention of juvenile delinquency? According to current research findings, the answer is yes. Ninety percent of court adjudicated delinquents tested had learning-related vision problems, while a longitudinal study in California showed that relapsing to crime was 30 percent lower among those having received vision therapy.

Like a runaway train, the rising tide of juvenile delinquency creates a sense of helplessness in a society trying desperately to deal with gang violence, random shootings, theft and drug abuse. Discovering that vision therapy offers one possible means of prevention brings new hope.

Blanch Brandt, vision therapy administrator for a nine-year study conducted by the State of California Department of Youth Authority, will be in San Diego, Thursday, September 28, discussing this issue. Her free lecture and video presentation, sponsored by Parents Active for Vision Education (P.A.V.E.), will be 7 p.m. at Grossmont College room #100.

"There's a critical relationship between vision and achievement," explains Robert Sanet. San Diego County Optometrist of the Year and vision therapy specialist. "A child having 20/20 eyesight can still have vision problems. What happens is a communication between eyes and brain, causing poor focusing and tracking skills. Because some are unable to read or write, they're often misdiagnosed dyslexic or labeled 'stupid.'

In a recent American Optometric Association News interview, Paul Harris, O.D., head of a Maryland Study research team clarified, "If you don't have the necessary visual abilities to handle that which society requires you to handle, then you're going to channel those energies into something else."

"A child can turn toward delinquency when he cannot achieve in the classroom," adds Marjie Thompson, president of P.A.V.E., a San Diego-based support group for parents and teachers concerned about children with learning-related vision problems. "By encouraging our schools to provide screenings for kids in kindergarten, first and second grades, their vision can be corrected before too much damage is done."

How can San Diego benefit from this new research? Can our schools offer screenings for young children as a means of prevention? Will county juvenile correctional facilities administer vision testing and treatment as part of rehabilitation? What are the possibilities, roadblocks and implications? Blanch Brandt and P.A.V.E. members plan to cover these topics in the Thursday evening discussion.

Recycled newsprint legislation awaits governors approval

The State Legislature today passed a measure by Assemblyman Lucy Killea (D-San Diego) which would require greater use of recycled newsprint. Killea wrote the measure in response to the recent collapse in the market for old newspapers.

The drop in prices for newspaper collected by recycling programs threatens the economic viability of recycling and it couldn't come at a worse time-just as we are about to adopt ambitious new recycling goals for the state," said Killea.

The bill, AB 1305, would require a publisher or printer who uses newsprint to use recycled paper for at least 25% of its annual tonnage beginning January 1, 1991. The goal would be increased in steps to 50% by the year 2000. Old newspapers are commonly used in the production of new newsprint.

The newsprint consumer would only be required to purchase recycled paper if it were available at a comparable price and quality. The California Newspaper Publishers Association supports the bill.

The glut in old newspapers has caused prices to drop from as much as $100 per ton to $5 per ton. Some cities are now paying to have old newspapers hauled away and are faced with raising garbage rates to replace revenues lost due to the collapse in the newsprint market.

"Unless we do something about the market," said Killea, we will end up having the bury this easily recyclable material. And we just don't have the land-

Sports Commentary

By John E. Wirges

The flame still flickers. Despite the loud wind blowing hard from non-believers, the Padres are still very much in the race.

Reporters are not paid to be tub thumpers, but they don't have to be front runners to prove their independence. In this sea sided community, jumping ship is still a civil sacrilege.

Barry Lorge, you done us Padre believers wrong. Your feeling that Yogi Berra's sage observation that "It ain't over 'til it's over," is a simple folk platitude and that in reference to the Padres' hard charging, late driving campaign, "Sometimes it is over before it is officially over," stings the soul.

Last week was last week and the wins and losses are recorded for all time. Sure the Padres wanted to Sweep the Giants up in wet Candlestick, but they didn't. They won 2 of 3. They are still in the race. Had they lost 2 of 3, they would have still been in the race. No matter what, it ain't over 'til it's over.

Sure they need help. But then pennants are always won that way. Baseball is an honest sport spread out over 162 games. No one wins by beating just one team. The only standings that count are the standings posted after the final game of the season.

And that game is still a week away, here at home, against the Giants. All the Padre faithful want is a 2 or 3 game change in the standings between now and then. They hope that will bring Roger Craig's horde into San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium for the final 3 game series with the division title still on the line.

It's not only possible, it's likely. The Giants have a tougher schedule between now and next week. Craig's crew is in the middle of a 3 game set with their long standing arch enemy, the Los Angeles Dodgers, and they have another 3-game series in Dodger country. They also have a 3-game series with the Houston Astros. Remember them? They're the other second place contender

The Padres are in Los Angeles for 3 games this weekend, and host the Reds to a 3-game set before next weekend's Giant series.

Jack McKeon's crew have a formidable task, but only summer soldiers call it quits before the final out is logged.

Real fighters stand their ground and even take time to smell the roses along the campaign trail. That's part of the fun of it.

Baseball is a way of life. It teaches the values of keeping faith, never giving up and fighting your best fight. It's an old rule that non-contenders play front line troops when facing those still in the running during the pennant drive.

Cincinnati stubbed its toe on that one, sending a called-up minor leaguer like Rosario Rodriguez in to lose games against the Giants. The Red's Tommy Helms may be a rookie manager, but he should have known better. Now, it's pay 'em back time.

Just give 'em a break and a fighting chance and don't call it quits until the Padres have their last at bats against the Giants. Even if they don't make it, let 'em finish fighting.

"Baseball," wrote late Commission A. Bartlett Giamatti in the Yale Alumni Journal, "is designed to break your heart. The game begins in the spring when everything else begins again, and it blossoms in the summer, filling the afternoons and evenings, and then as soon as the rains come, it stops and leaves you to face the Let's not quit on the Padres. Let's keep the faith and hold fall back right into the World Series.

Spring Valley Crunchers close out successful season

One of the most highly successful softball clubs met for a day of remembering-remembering and replaying the games that took them to the ASA 19 and Under National Tourney in Sioux Falls, South Dakota. Although they did not qualify for an automatic berth to the 1990 Nationals, they placed 20th in a field of 60 teams. Nationwide, there were nearly 6000 teams that started the season hoping for a berth to Nationals. The Crunchers had a very successful season.

In spite of injuries to three key players, the youth of club, and not bolstering the team with pick-up players from non-qualifying teams, (they were allowed two), the Crunchers only two losses were to two teams which eventually placed near the top. The games were decided by the margin of one run in both cases.

The Crunchers look forward to their best season next year as they will lose no players to age requirements. Both Coach Mora and Coach Brickner anticipate stronger players next year in that seven of the girls will have collegiate experience for the 1990 season. The remaining players will be involved in their high school softball teams.

The Crunchers wish to thank everyone for their financial support and prayers. Fund raising activities will continue, as the cost to field a competitive team continues to escalate. You can help now by ordering your 1990 Entertainment Book from Grace Brickner at 197-1096. There is free delivery. On September 16, the Matador Cross Country Team members John Saucedo, David Gilbert, Gary Lawrence, Jerry Maloney, Matt Morales, and Marc Scott participated in the Mt. Carmel-Movin' Shoes Invitational at Morley Field in Balboa Park.

Matador runners Soccer players participate in Hawaiian tourney

By Mike Kohler

During the week of July 24th through August 1st, eight members of Mount Miguel's varsity soccer team participated in the Royal Hawaiian soccer tournament in Maui, Hawaii.

The team was coached by Jim Healey and Don Pio and was sponsored by Berry's Athletic Supply. The team consisted of Randy Walsh, Jesse Pruett, Robbie Peterson, Mike Kohler, Ricky Ramirez, Steve Godwin, Patrick Healey and three members from Monte Vista's squad.

The first game was won 2-0 at the hands of Roy, Utah. The Utah team couldn't keep up with the aggressive pressure that Berry's applied. Berry's had to overcome adversity when three players were red-carded in the first two games, leaving them with only eight field players in a game against Hilo, Hawaii. The boys from Spring Valley came out on top 1-0, however, when a Pat Healey cornerkick found the head of a leaping Steve Godwin for the only goal.

Berry's finished 2-2 overall and took second in the tournament out of four teams.

The local team from Maui took first, which was well deserved. They played a Vahallatype of soccer to finish undefeated. Berry's lacked practice and continuity but not the most important ingredient needed in

Joe Freed on the movies

'Sea of Love'

I just don't understand it. Why do these people let themselves get into these situations? You know who I'm talking about — Michael Douglas in "Fatal Attraction," Glenn Close in "Jagged Edge," and now Al Pacino in "Sea of Love" — people who find themselves in a highly erotic, highly dangerous, highly stupid situation. But I guess that's what makes "Sea of Love" such a great movie ... the audiences knows what might go wrong.

Al Pacino is a New York cop, (hey, isn't everybody?), tracking a murderous woman who kills the men she meets through a single's publication. With the help of another detective investigating the same case in Queens, (John Goodman), Pacino places his own ad in the magazine, trying to lure the killer into revealing herself. It all sounds logical - right? Well then our favorite policeman gets a heavy case of stupidity and becomes sexually involved with a woman who may very well be the prime suspect (Ellen Barkin), and I don't think I need to tell you, from then on things get very complicated.

"Sea of Love" is a thriller with a capital "T," never once allowing the audience to remove their fingernails from their teeth. The pace is quick and each scene has come significance to the story. So often a thriller may have a powerful climax or an exciting car chase, but will fall victim to an astoundingly slow pace, which can destroy its effectiveness, (i.e. "The January Man"). However, "Sea of Love" director Harold Becker has perfected a cinematically intense style, presenting a frustrating, scary, wonderful movie.

Al Pacino is fantastic as the lonely cop, who unfortunately only finds love with a partner who could possibly be a psychopath. Pacino hasn't made a film in a few years — his last was the forgettable "Revolution," and its refreshing to see him back in the limelight. Ellen Barkin, who seems to get more beautiful with each film she makes, is incredibly seductive as Pacino's lover/suspect, and she really adds dimension to the mystery and fear of her character. John Goodman is also superb as the "side-kick" and he provides the comic relief which is so essential to the film. Without it, I think the movie would be too intense.

Once again, those of a weak stomach or those who are easily offended should beware. "Sea of Love" has its share of violence and some semi-graphic sexual situations. While they do add to the intensity of the film, it may be too much for some audiences.

One more thing ... while you're watching, see if you can figure out who the murderer is. It's a pretty safe bet you'd never guess correctly, but it's fun to try anyway. "Sea of Love," rated R for violence, language and sex is playing nationwide.

Sea World, KUSI Kid's Club celebrate Baby Shamu's first birthday

Sea World's killer whale calf Baby Shamu turns one year old September 23 and the San Diego park has planned a weekend-long party to celebrate.

Sea World has teamed up with KUSI TV-51 and Eagle 105 radio to offer a "kids free" weekend at the park. Children 11 and under can enter Sea World free of charge when they bring a gift of canned or dried food or a new item of children's clothing the weekend of September 23 and 24. The gifts go to feed and clothe needy children throughout San Diego and Tijuana.

All children 11 and under visiting the park that weekend will receive a piece of Baby Shamu's birthday cake and a full-color killer whale and calf poster.

Also part of the festive weekend, Sea World has planned a private party with cookies, punch, music and games inside the park for KUSI Kid's Club members. KUSI Kid's Club also turns one year old in September. Kids who have yet to join can sign up at a special registration table in the park's entrance plaza that weekend. Kid's Club membership is free.

Parents of Kid's Club members are not left out either. Accompanying adults will receive a 20 percent discount on their Sea World admission with a Kid's Club membership card.

KUSI will kick off the special birthday weekend with a children's television special, "Happy Birthday, Baby Shamu," Friday, September 22 at 4:00 p.m. with a re-broadcast Saturday, September 23 at 7:00 a.m. The 30-minute show highlights the calf's remarkable progress over the last year and Sea World's hopes for her future.

Baby Shamu was born before 2,000 park guests gathered at an afternoon killer whale show September 23, 1988. She has grown steadily and now weighs an estimated 1,000 pounds and is about 10 feet long. She eats up to 65 pounds of smelt, squid and herring daily.

Sea World is located off Interstate 5 on Sea World Drive in San Diego. The park is open daily from 9:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Adult admission is $21, children 3-11 $15.50 and children under three are admitted free.

Free admission to children 11 and under bringing dry or canned food or new children's clothing for the needy children of San Diego and Tijuana, September 23-24 only. (No unsupervised children, please).

Call 226-3901 for more park information.
